

New art, open calls for the submissions

Every art exhibit at the Georgetown Public Library is unique. With more than 20 exhibits annually, each including 20-80 original works of art, there is a great deal of originality and creativity for the eye to see.

Pam Jernigan's upcoming solo show, "Whimsical Stitches: The Journey" is especially creative.

"My journey continues, incorporating many other media into my textile art," she said. "This exhibit has a centerpiece that is so much fun for families with children of all ages: a piece called 'Whimsical Enchantment.'"

"It is a life-sized fairy tree that is large enough for visitors to step inside and feel the magic. All the fairies and other elements are handmade and there is a story I wrote that tells all about the tree."

"Other pieces on display show even more of the journey I am living. I have included some weaving and macramé pieces, as well as some resin art. I still allow my imagination to go where it wants to wander." Ms. Jernigan's show opens in the library on January 20 and runs through February 20 in the second floor Hall and Bridge galleries, with a public reception set for January 21, from 4-6 p.m.

She is an experienced textile artist who has won first place and best of show prizes in the Georgetown Quilt and Stitchery Show, Round Rock Arts Big Show and Imagine exhibit, the Lampasas County Fair Art Show, and the Chisholm Trail Quilt Guild Show. Read more about her on her website, artworksbybam.com.

In the library's downstairs Café Gallery a group called Artists of Central Texas will display their work January 20-March 24, with a reception Sunday, February 6 from 2-4 p.m. This exhibit displays the very diverse styles and subject matter of the group. Each artist brings their own vision of what art means to them and will give the viewer much to contemplate and enjoy.

For more information about these and other library events, visit library.georgetown.org/events-calendar or call 512-980-3551.

Finally, are you an artist, or a member of an art organization, who would like to show your own original artwork in the library? Each year the library has an open call for proposals. We select the artists who will have solo or group exhibitions in the library during the following calendar year. Our next open call will be March 1-May 15, and from the submitted proposals we will select the 2023 exhibitions. Details can be found under "Exhibiting Your Work in the Library" at library.georgetown.org/art.

See you in the library!
