Mr. Carmona got his education in the military, where he became a mid-grade non-commissioned officer. For eight years he worked as an officer. In 2011, his family moved to Colorado — he left the Army and so did my family —" Mr. Evans said.

Mr. Carmona says his goals are to see that sworn deputies and employees are treated fairly and respectfully. "I think this training is preparing us for that," Mr. Evans said. As Lieutenant of patrol services, Mr. Carmona oversees training for new deputies and employees. During that time he rose to deputy in detective, in juvenile crimes and internal affairs.

"After a time in narcotics, and investigations, Mr. Carmona says, "I became the chief investigator for the training department. For eight years we oversaw training for new employees. A few years before my retirement, he returned to ga

As for his family, he said, "I have four kids and my wife, and we're doing well in this position." Mr. Carmona says his wife, Jennifer, is an incredibly supportive partner. She is a school teacher and has her own full-time job. "She's been incredible, our family, said Mr. Carmona.
