WILLIE NELSON

‘If a business is pet care, we see that the existing fire code protects these important members of our families,’ Schroeder said. “These amendments represent a long overdue change in how the fire code protects those important members of our families.”

The fire safety features animal-care facilities are now required contain fire- and smoke-detection systems, which includes how to conduct a supervised fire alarm system, the new code says.

He also said that city staff would be available to work with anyone who wants to bring this model to other communities.

“The code amendments the council approved this week will [make George- town one of the] states in the U.S. to board your pet in the online country,” Mayor Bob Schroecler said. “Those amendments represent a long overdue change in how our fire code protects those important members of our families.”

Requirements

All animal-care facilities that will be built in Georgetown after March 9 will have ad- vanced fire protection fea- tures that include a sprinkler system, the new code says.

Unless sprinklers are otherwise approved in lieu of City’s Building or Fire codes, these alternatives to a sprinkler system will be acceptable for such facil- ities.

• With capacity for 50 or fewer animals, a super- vised fire alarm system will fulfill the same stan- dards as the garages in most homes will be accepted in lieu of a sprinkler system.

• Those with the capacity for 50 to 100 animals that meet the requirements for 50 animals or fewer, and have walls surrounding the rooms made from fire-resistant materials will not be required to install a sprinkler system.

• A facility with the capacity for 101 to more than 121 animals will be required to have a sprinkler system.

The newly adopted regu- lations will go into effect 10 days after adoption, apply- ing to any future construction after March 9, according to Schroeder.

Williamson County Animal Shelter

Willie Nelson, 91, has lived through some intriguing times. He lost his home when his other home burnt down. Now he is courting a good-hearted person to help him rebuild.

“We’re not looking for a housewife to take care of me,” he said. “We’re looking for someone who will be interested in our lives and in our work.”

He knows “meat,” he said. “I’m not looking for a housewife. I’m looking for a partner who will enjoy working with me.”
