Library relaunches interlibrary loan service

The Georgetown Public Library has reactivated its interlibrary loan service, which has been unavailable because of a six-month hiatus.

For the past six months, though, this service has been unavailable due to technical challenges.

“Ill is a service in which patrons of our library can request items from libraries outside the United States,” said K. F. Stubert, librarian at the Georgetown Public Library. “This service has been unavailable because of technical challenges.”

The request is first reviewed by the library's staff, and then the request is processed and then let you know that it is ready for pickup at our circulation desk.

Items are loaned to us by nearby libraries and by these states: The library that owns the item determines how these buildings got their names.
