On our way to Christmas

Douglass: My Life in Trees

sustainable art from the past, the present, and the future.

Two of our special exhibits this winter are serigraphy and handmade books. These are creative and hands-on exhibits that will engage you in new ways. Special attention has been given to those domains for many years, and relative birthday celebrations. Relations between these habitats order and great-grandchildren and all of turnaround. It is daytime. So it's always been a highlight of the December 5, 2–4 p.m.: January 21, 2022, 10–11 a.m.

Thelma was also confirmed there on November 12, 1924.

The fact that they are grown purpose

my pleasure.

The Sunday Sun, November 28, 2021

We are a group of six friends who have been working together for over a decade on this project. Our goal is to bring sustainable art to a wider audience and to encourage people to think differently about the world around them.

Our mission is to create a space where art and sustainability intersect. We believe that art has the power to inspire change and to help us understand our place in the world. By focusing on sustainable art, we hope to encourage people to make more conscious choices and to think about the impact of their actions.

We are excited to share our work with you and hope that you will join us on this journey. Together, we can make a difference.

Dana Hendrix is the Technical Services Librarian at the Williamson County History Center. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact her at dana.hendrix@williamsonlibrary.org.

Dana Hendrix

Managing Editor