Art receptions connect artist with community

BIBLIOFILES
Dana Hendra

Have you ever attended an art reception? The receptions at the Georgetown Public Library are always open to the public, and the next one will be Sunday, December 11, from 4 - 6 p.m. The reception will recognize Robert Doughless, the talented artist whose exhibit “The Art of Robert Doughless” just opened this week. The exhibit runs through January 16, so there’s plenty of time to see it, but attending a reception is a unique opportunity. Receptions are a great place to meet an exhibiting artist and see an exhibit, enjoy some refreshments and chat with others who are interested in the arts. No RSVP or reservation is required—just come to the library and enjoy the event.

Art lovers who are connecting at home this month also have opportunities through the library; our E-books and E-audios are available to anyone with a current resident or non-resident library card.

Fiction readers might enjoy The Art of Fingers by J. A. Marquie, or The Missing, both by R. A. Black. I Always Loved You by Robin Oliveira;

Claude & Camille by Maggie O’Farrell; The Last Days of Pompeii by Mary Renault; and House of the Holy by Diane Zipp.

Nonfiction readers might want to check out Art Masters: Verses Your Imagination Can Change the World by Neil Gaiman; The Art of Photography by Bruce Bainbridge, or The Art of Inventive Rocks, Peas, and Fishes and the

God’s Pill
Edible Holy Communion
God Capsule

Canada s only get up or belt capsule

On Pantable.com

Bank Local. Bank with Guaranty.
Financial Services that grow with you and your family

Greg Edby
President

Christy Owen
Assistant Vice President

Dana Geley
Loan Officer Manager

Fulton Marley
Personal Banker

We look forward to serving you, Georgetown!
Stop by and see us on the square!

120 West 8th Street
Georgetown, Texas 78626
512.505.0660
www.greyp.com | Member FDIC

Search for Local Businesses by Philip Nichols

If there is a young reader in your household, they might enjoy an Eye for Art by the National Gallery of Art, which introduces children to more than 50 great artists and their work. All of these E-books and more are available through the library’s E-book services. We have two sources for E-books: OverDrive through the Library app and R eadF ed through the SimplyE app. Both

You can find more information at library.georgetown.org. If you still need help, visit the library at 1100-600. We’ll help you download the app and get started reading or listening.

For more information about these and other library events, visit library.georgetown.org/events. You can also call 512-946-3856.

James Hendra is the Technical Services Librarian at the Georgetown Public Library.

The place for Celebratin

Welcome the holidays on the most beautiful town square in Texas.

From a Square that looks like it’s straight out of a storybook to locally owned shops selling one-of-a-kind gifts, we welcome you to share in our traditions and make them yours this holiday season. Wishing you and yours a very special holiday season! For more information visit GeorgetownTX.com

#LoveWhereYouLive | / | /