Holdens celebrate 60 years

Mary Jean and Jerry Dean Holden

When the current iteration of the Georgetown Public Library opened in 2007, the building had been open for thirteen years, and it was not the first time Georgetown had a library. The original library building was located on Second Street, and its successor was located at 203 North Limestone Avenue. The current building was occupied by 2007.

In 1970, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1974, the Holdens bought the family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

In 1975, the Holdens moved to a family-owned bookstore, The Book Corner, which was located at 131 South Limestone Avenue. The store offered a wide selection of books and magazines, and it was a popular spot for both locals and visitors. The bookstore was closed in 2003, and the property was sold.

The Holdens were avid readers and collectors of rare books, and they continued to be active in the local community. In 2007, they celebrated the 60th anniversary of the Georgetown Public Library, and they were honored for their contributions to the community.

The Georgetown Public Library is a cherished part of the community, and it is a testament to the enduring spirit of the Holdens and their dedication to the library and the people it serves.