

Libraries rock for adults, too: Summer reading program kicks off

BIBLIOFILES

Dana Hendrix

Even though I've been out of school for — eek — more than 30 years, the school-year rhythm still has an impact. The beginning of the summer is heady with vacation and travel planning, full of adventure and changes in routine. As the school year comes to a close, it feels like time for me to allow for some lazy hours of leisure reading and listening to music, just like I reveled in when I was a student. There's that feeling of excitement: what new books can I delve into? What good old music will bring that summer feeling back again?

One routine I intend to renew this summer after having let it lapse is keeping up with my reading journal. I started it in 2016 as a way to remember the books I've read and when I read them, and as I recall books I read from the past I add those, too. My journal is a simple blue Moleskine blank book. It has already been a help when I am trying to remember the title or author of a book, but keeping a chronological reading journal is also a creative and reflective activity itself — if you record just a few sentences about your own reaction to the book, or what was going on in your life while you read it, it becomes more personal and interesting to look back on. You could do the same with music you're listening to, as well.

As summer begins in the library, our routines here change, too. We have lots of programs for children during the coming months, including our annual Summer Reading Program for kids, tweens, and teens. This year, though, we are expanding and including an Adult Summer Reading Program to offer those 18 and older some of the benefits the children get. Both the children's and adults' programs are themed Libraries Rock, and they both pull together libraries, reading and music for a summer of fun. (Joyce May wrote about the children's program in this column; it appeared in the May 16 issue of the Sun.)

The adult program this year will include several challenges that participants can take on during the summer. Completing three of them qualifies you for a drawing for prizes that will be awarded August 8, including a Kindle Fire, a Bluetooth speaker, shirts, mugs, lanyards and reusable bags. Pick up your copy of the challenge card at the first floor circulation desk beginning June 6.

Some of the challenges include reading a biography of a musician, watching a musical or movie about a musician, attending one of the Live Music at the Library events on the third Sunday of June or July, and checking out a music CD from the library's collection.

Another way to accomplish one of the challenges and qualify for the prize drawing is to attend an Adult Summer Reading Program event. Library staff will guide attendees in making music-inspired ceramic coasters at the DIY Music Craft event at 6 p.m. June 13. Coloring sheets and coffee will also be offered. Everyone is invited to a screening of Miss Sharon Jones at 6 p.m. July 11. This award-winning documentary follows the soul singer from Grammy nominated R&B band Sharon Jones and the Dap Kings as she records what will be her final album. Popcorn will be provided.

The program finale at 6 p.m. August 8 will be Music Trivia and the prize drawing. Attendees can enjoy snacks and compete as a team or solo in a music trivia game for a chance to win some Summer Reading Program swag and find out who wins the challenge prizes.

We hope you'll consider adding some ideas from our Adult Summer Reading Program to your plans this summer whether you'll be spending time on the beach or on a train, in the library or your favorite reading nook at home.

See you at the library!

Attempts at French gets snickers; Snoopy named favorite character

Editor's note: The first entry in this column continues from Yesteryears, published in the May 23, 2018 issue.

CONT'D: Letter from France — "The boy was about five years and his sister a little older. My French didn't seem to go very well — very discouraging — all of their answers being camouflaged with snickers: in fact, I was batting very low until I pulled an "Independent" on them and showed them the pictures; then business picked up and conversation become very animated. Someone is always taking the joy out of life. Some good sister called across the fence to the mother that Jean and Louis were about to be kidnapped: mother was horrified: Children were called home; but to show me that she was a good sport, mother sent me a bouquet. Later, Jean and Louis ran away again, and the slaughter of the French language continued. When the field was cleared for supper, I had several new words in my vocabulary. Another thing worthy of record is the fact that I got a good old warm BATH last Sunday. These are getting to be great events in our lives. Also I miss my cold shower each morning. Here I stopped and went to mass." TO BE CONTINUED

Forty-Six But Joins The Army — Early last year four nephews [two are Georgetown boys] of Mr. John H. Mosby

of Austin volunteered their services to the Government in the Army. ... Since they volunteered, Mr. Mosby has been determined to get into the fighting some way and go with the boys across. Last week he telephoned his sister and told her that at last he had been accepted and had joined a machine gun battalion. He was sworn in and wants to transfer to the Division at Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, where his four nephews are located and go with them across.

GHS valedictorian is Terrell Benold, with a four-year average GPA of 93.783. Salutatorian Cindy Snead had a GPA of 93.500.

Question of the Week — "Who is your favorite fictional character?" Monica Schroeder — "My favorite fictional character is Snoopy. He is carefree and really knows how to enjoy life. His adventures are perfect examples of what a free spirit can accomplish. He says nothing but knows everything. I think there is, or should be, a little bit of Snoopy in us all."

Steve Kemble — "The cyclops are my favorite fictional characters. These characters are found in Greek mythology. They have one hundred hands, fifty heads and one enormous eye in the middle of their foreheads. They are gigantic towering creatures. The cyclops could be called monsters also because they usually eat a human sometime during the day. I guess I like them because they are so crazy and weird and prove to be pretty interesting."

Tim Mickan — "Tom Sawyer is my favorite fictional character because he is the country type of boy. Tom goes everywhere barefoot and is the real 'do what he wants' type of guy. But whatever his parents tell him, he always does. Tom is my kind of guy."

Stephen Douglas Benold received his Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of Texas' Southwestern Medical School. Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Benold, Laurie Catherine, Lynnelle and Terrell attended the graduation.

May 26 & 29, 2002

GHS Class of '77 and SWTU grad Steve Kemble received the prestigious Special Event Industry Lifetime Achievement Award. Steve has successfully spent more than 20 years in the business and has won many awards for his productions.

Valedictorian Brent Carroll will attend Rice in the fall. Salutatorian Michael Rothenberg is off to Stanford. The next ranking honor grads are Rachel French, Brandy Zrubek and Frances Matlock.

5A baseball All Stars are Aaron Crais, Andy Ekdahl, Matt Isbell and Steven Siers.

May 26 & 30, 2010
